PROLONG YOUR LIFE

By using Cundurango. This medicine is the only discovered vegetable substitute for cod liver oil. Thousands have been cured of Biliousness, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Constipation, Pains in the Back, Side, Chest, Pleurisy, Lassitude, Liver Disease, Jaundice, Heart Disease, Rush of Blood to the Head, Sick Headache, Fainting Spells. It is the great regulator of the Liver, Kidneys, Blood and Stomach, and tones the system to a healthy condition. Read what those who have used it say:

From Rev. Dr. McAnally, editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate:

"I have tried J. & C. Maguire's Cundurango on myself and others and it is my opinion that to produce a healthy and safe action on the liver, kidneys and secretions generally, there is not a better medicine known and for persons of bilious or costive habits its action is most effective and salutary." D. R. MCANALLY.

MR. CHARLES T. AUBIN, Secretary of the St. Louis Board of Fire Underwriters for many years, says that while in New Orleans he believes J. & C. Maguire's Cundurango saved his life.

A BAD STROKE.SALISBURY'S GOVERNMENT AND THE COMMISSION AT LOGGERHEADS.

Gladstone Will Not Go to Ireland—The Government's Defeat in the Trafalgar Square Case—Another Battenberg Alliance—The Wilson Scandal—Action of the Chamber of Deputies—Meeting of the Czar and Emperor William—Foreign News.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, November 18.—The Government is in fresh difficulties. I may say positively that they will have no big bill ready when Parliament begins its session, but will have to fall back on the new representative changes in the procedure directed against the Irish obstructionists. They had intended to begin with a great local Government bill for England, but a difference of opinion has arisen between the House of Commons and the Government as to taking the poor law unions as a basis for new elective bodies, which the Commissioners advise, and to which the Government is opposed. This is another bad stroke for the Government, which is almost as unlooked for as it is terrible.

DENIED AGAIN.

I can state authoritatively that there is no foundation for the rumors that Mr. Gladstone will go to Ireland. Some time ago he was asked to attend Mr. Sexton's inaugural banquet as Lord Mayor of Dublin. His reply was not such a decisive refusal as was anticipated, but it is now stated that he will not go.

ANOTHER FALSE STEP.

The Government have made another false step. It has been decided in the police courts that no penalty attaches to the offense of ignoring Sir Charles Warren's proclamation, which was simply a notice with no effect whatever. The Home Secretary's theory that Trafalgar Square is Crown property is also broken down, for if the square is the Queen's property it cannot come under Warren's supervision. Unless the higher courts come to their aid the Government are entirely without a legal defense. Meanwhile the higher legal opinion is against Warren. The question will be formally raised in Parliament by the United Liberal members for London.

ANOTHER BATTENBERG ALLIANCE.

I hear that Prince Alexander of Battenberg is likely to marry Princess Louise of Wales. The Prince of Wales would probably look askance at another Battenberg alliance, but the Queen has never enough of the family.

MUST FACE THE MUSIC.

The Chamber of Deputies decides to Criminally Prosecute Wilson.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, November 18.—As announced in a cable to the Post-Dispatch yesterday, the motion to criminally prosecute M. Wilson was passed in the Chamber of Deputies, to which the bill, by vote of 327 to 3, M. Mazenod the Minister of Justice, and M. Goron the Public Prosecutor, thereupon placed their resignations in the hands of President Grevy, who accepted them. M. Wilson appears before the Lower Chamber several interpellations, possibly resulting in the defeat of the Cabinet were confidently expected. Then every one was asking if a decided attempt would be made to force M. Grevy's hand. A Presidential and Ministerial crisis at one and the same moment were regarded as anything but unlikely. The animation with which every incident of the Wilson affair was discussed.

REGAINS ALL ATTEMPT AT DESCRIPTION.

It was considered almost a foregone conclusion that the House would sanction the prosecution, but conjectures were made as to what would be the attitude of the Ministry. After M. Floquet had taken his place in the Presidential chair, M. Rouvier, M. Clemenceau and M. Lockyer stepped up in turn to confer with him. M. Jules Ferry was to be seen conversing with M. Rouvier, and there was a busy hum until M. Floquet stood up and announced that he had received from the President of the Council of Ministers a request for permission to prosecute M. Wilson. The question was submitted to the House and almost unanimously voted. So far so good. It was immediately understood that the Ministry had thrown M. Wilson overboard. The crowd which had gathered outside increased and could almost be estimated by thousands. There was a strong force of police, and men hurried hither and thither, commenting on the strange situation. When the sitting was resumed at 4:30 o'clock the diplomatic box was as full as could be, that of the President of the Republic being unattended throughout the afternoon. It was known that a committee composed exclusively of Republicans had been unanimous in approving of the prosecution, and when M. Achard, the reporter of the committee, mounted the tribune to read his report, the excitement was at its height. The report in itself was very brief, but it contained a document drawn up and signed by the Procureur-General, giving a detailed account of the substitution of M. Wilson's letter. The Procureur-General pointed out the interest that M. Wilson had in getting rid of these compromising papers. He showed how M. Wilson had declared the substituted letters to be authentic and genuine, how M. Wilson had denied his assertion, and how the watermark had borne

ELOQUENT WITNESS AGAINST HIM.

The Public Prosecutor, therefore, asked for permission to bring M. Wilson to trial. After M. Achard had resumed his seat, M. Floquet asked if the discussion should begin at once.

"Yes" was the cry raised from every corner of the House. But for a few moments no one came forward. Then M. Goblet, late Prime Minister, ascended the tribune and in a few words expressed his opinion that the case did not warrant such a step. M. Wilson had been to blame, but he had been guilty of no crime, and he, for one, would not vote for his prosecution. There was another pause, and then M. Millerand, a young Republican member, took up the discussion. Public conscience, he declared, had been wounded by this substitution of scandals all were equal before the law. This principle seemed to have been set at naught, but the Republican party must show that it was to be maintained. It was a question of its own credit, and he would vote for the prosecution. This was all. M. Floquet put the question promptly to the House. The votes were taken and counted in ten minutes, and amid breathless silence the President announced that 377 members had voted for and only three against the prosecution. The result of the vote produced another sensation. No one could have ventured to predict that the Chamber would, to all intents and purposes, pronounce unanimously in favor of

M. WILSON'S PROSECUTION.

The Cabinet, which was expected to put in a word for the Palace of the Elysee. What will M. Grevy say? was the one question which every one asked, first in lobbies and then outside, for the King had immediately broken up and each group had collected to discuss the situation. It was considered impossible that M. Grevy could persist in remaining at the Elysee. M. Wilson moved the last of his personal effects from the Elysee Palace to his new house yesterday. I met him this afternoon. He seemed quite untroubled and was smoking a cigarette. M. de Fallieres, the Minister of the Interior, has demanded the resignation of M. Gragnon, the Prefect of Police, who is incriminated in the abstraction from the Palace of Justice of the now-famous Wilson letters. M. Rouvier, an official of the Department of the Interior and a man of undoubted integrity, has been appointed in his place.

PARIS, November 18.—M. Wilson and his family have just left the Palace of the Elysee. The Extreme Left and a great majority of the Republican members of the Chamber of Deputies have abandoned their intention to send a delegation to ask President Grevy to resign.

THE PROBABLE REACTION.

La Paix admits that the prosecution of M. Wilson is necessary, and says that it only remains for justice to speak. Many newspapers believe that the Grand-jury will return a verdict in the case of "Not proven." The Radical and Moderate Press, however, violently attack President Grevy for refusing to resign. Prime Minister Rouvier has announced that he will not consent to a debate on an interpellation concerning the Wilson affair, which the Republican group intend to propose in the Chamber of Deputies to-morrow.

THE TWO EMPERORS.

Arrival of the Czar of Russia at Berlin—A Warm Greeting.

BERLIN, November 18.—The Czar of Russia arrived in Berlin this morning. The preparations to receive him were in keeping with his rank. At 10 o'clock the Alexander Regiment, in parade uniform, took position in the main square. The Emperor and Empress, accompanied by the Czar and Czarina, were to act as a guard of honor at the depot. A company of the Second Regiment of the colors, and one company of the Alexander Regiment, with colors, were stationed in front of the Russian Embassy. Prince William of Prussia, went to Wittenburg early this morning, to join his train bearing the Russian Imperial family. At the Berlin depot were gathered the royal Prussian Princes, the hereditary Prince of Saxe-Meiningen, Duke John of Mecklenburg-Schwerin; Gen. von Moltke and all the Generals of the Berlin and Potsdam garrisons. On the arrival of the Imperial train at 10:40 a. m., the Czar passed in front of the guard of honor at the depot, being accompanied by Prince William and the other Prussian Princes and Gen. von Moltke.

started for the Russian Embassy at 11 o'clock. The Czar and Czarina were driven to the Embassy. The Czar, with Prince William of Prussia, occupied an open carriage drawn by four horses. Both wore Russian uniforms. The Czarina and Prince William followed in a close carriage. Dense crowds of people were collected in Unter den Linden from the Brandenburg Gate to the Lehrte Depot, and the Imperial party were greeted by cheering throngs as they passed along the thoroughfare. Arriving at the Embassy the Czar received three flags as Colonel of the Alexander Regiment and a general officer, a non-commissioned officer and a private reporter, themselves to act as orderlies.

HOMERS TO THE IMPERIAL VISITOR.

All the Princes, the Czar's suite, the members of the Russian Embassy and their wives, and Prince Bismarck and all the Prussian Ministers and Generals will attend the banquet at the Palace this evening. The leading Berlin papers say they are convinced that the populace will receive the Czar with the respect due to the Emperor's guest and the ruler of an empire living at peace with Germany, irrespective of the reasons dictating the visit. They will consider the visit an act of courtesy, to which they could hardly attach a political meaning. The papers say they believe the Czar will be able to convince himself, when he meets the Emperor, of the peace best of the German people. The North German Gazette (Prince Bismarck's organ) does not refer to the Czar's visit.

AT THE RUSSIAN EMBASSY.

The Czar and Prince William alighted in front of the Embassy at 11:10 and passed along in front of the guard of honor which was drawn up there. The Princes and the Czarina remained in their carriage.

The Czar had intended to first visit Emperor William, but he was anticipated by the Emperor, who was at the Embassy and awaited the arrival of the Czar. The Emperor was dressed in a Russian uniform, and wore his Russian orders. He received the Czar on his entrance the Embassy in a most cordial manner. All the Princes who were at the depot followed the
